Discussion

These phone calls were follow-up from a meeting on February 15, 2001 where the 371 Responsiveness Summary was discussed and all of the concerns were addressed with the exception of one. James was still concerned that the DOP did not provide adequate notification for the RSOP, and he felt that additional notification would be required 30 days prior to initiating a new decommissioning activity. This same issue came up during the 771 DOP comment resolution process and agreement was made with Denise Onyskiw that informal meetings would be held to relay progress and status of activities. At that time, CDPHE may request additional information on those activities and perform walk downs of the areas if they deem necessary. I explained the agreement made with Denise, and James committed to think about it and call me later in the day. That same afternoon James called and indicated that the process established for the 771 DOP would be acceptable for the 371 DOP and that the same language should be added to the DOP responsiveness summary for consistency. I indicated to him that the change would be made, and a redlined version of the DOP would be sent to him electronically, and the DOP would be finalized for CDPHE approval.
